Olive Oil Greenway is an ecotourism route of 128 km, running along the old railway line of the 'Tren del Aceite' that linked Jaén and Puente Genil (Córdoba). It is a signposted, safe and accessible route, which can be followed by walkers and cyclists, and is ideal for children, seniors and people with reduced mobility due to its flat oute.

It has 12 stations (many of which have already been refurbished and offer tourist services), 13 superb iron viaducts, Eiffel style , 3 tunnels, 6 footbridges over roads, 45 rest areas, 13 parking areas, 8 areas for recreational vehicles and some drinking fountains.

Visitors can enjoy the tourist services and facilities in the 13 villages crossed by the greenway, and we recommend that you visit each of them to discover their rich heritage, culture and gastronomy.

The Olive Oil Greenway allows visitors to enjoy sustainable active tourism, generating a positive impact on the local economy. You will discover the unique landscape of the olive groves, the beauty of the Sierras Subbéticas Natural Park, (UNESCO World Geopark), the biodiversity of the lagoons and the uniqueness of the vineyards of the Pedro Ximénez grape variety.

Observations

- The surface is composed mainly of compated soil and asphalt or asphalt pavementin some sections.
- The tunnels are illuminated or do not require lighting due to their short length.
- There re some illuminated sections next to the stations for the enjoyment of the Olive Oil Greenway at night.
- Always carry a sufficient amount of food and water there are drinking fountains only at some stations).
- Helmets are compulsory for cyclists.
- Avoid extreme weather conditions, wear sunscream and appropriate clothing. Most stretches are without shelter from the sun or rain.
- The sections especially suitable for people with reduced mobility are located at the old stations.
- It is advisable to book in advance accommodation, guided tours, wine and olive oil tastings, bike rental and transfers from one point along the Greenway to another in advance.
- To promote sustainable tourism, use local suppliers.
